FOREWORD

Cedric Thorpe Davie, professor of music at St Andrews University until 1978, did not confine his activities to the academic world. He was certainly a distinguished teacher, but his sphere of activities encompassed a far wider range of interests. As a composer, he was familiar with the worlds of stage, screen and radio; as adjudicator, his face was well-known at music festivals all over Britain; as administrator, he served with distinction on the Arts Council and its Scottish counterpart, and he numbered the giants of the musical world amongst his friends.

When he died in 1983, his collection of autograph manuscripts came to St Andrews University Library under the terms of his will. As well as the scores of his major compositions, the collection contains early student exercises, sketches of many of his works, libretti and material relating to his books and articles and to some of the works he edited and arranged. He bequeathed his performing scores to the Scottish Music Information Centre in Glasgow, which can make them available for hire. All enquiries should be addressed there. *

Unfortunately, however, not all his manuscripts have survived. In particular, the scores of some of the incidental music he wrote for films are now in the hands of the film companies, so that the music in its final form is virtually lost. The BHC is also unable to find the scores of the incidental music to a number of the radio programmes. There are therefore inevitable gaps in the collection.

The catalogue has been compiled by Christine M. Gascoigne who gratefully acknowledges help from Robert N. Smart of St Andrews University Library, John Parcer of the Scottish Music Information Centre, Glasgow, and most of all from Cedric’s son Antony Davie, who has been unstintingly generous with his time and expertise, both in making available family papers and in his help with the computer program by which the catalogue has been typeset.

Cedric Thorpe Davie was born in London in 1913. His father, Thorpe Davie, was a remarkable Scot, well-known in Glasgow as a teacher of singing and trainer of choirs. He had started his musical career as a singer, training under the celebrated Polish tenor, Jean de Reszke, but turned to teaching after sustaining and damaging his voice. As a voice teacher he was enormously successful, having at one time charge of seven choirs, and many of his pupils had careers as professional singers. It was, then, into a family where music played a major part that Cedric was born. His early musical studies were at Glasgow, at the Scottish National Academy of Music *, where he came under the influence of the principal, Dr W. Gillies Whitaker, and R. Harold Thomson, afterwards head of music, BBC Scotland. In 1932, he was awarded a Caird scholarship for study in London and abroad, and in that year began his studies at the Royal Academy of Music in London, where he studied piano with the distinguished pianists Egon Petri and Harold Craske, and horn with Aubrey Brain. The following year, Cedric Thorpe Davie moved to the Royal College of Music, where his principal field of study was composition under Ralph Vaughan Williams and Dr R. O. Morris. Several prizes for composition came his way, including, in 1935, the prestigious Colbrett prize, awarded for a work in ‘phantasy’ form, the winners of which have included Frank Bridge, Herbert Howells and John Ireland. In 1935, he went abroad for a year, first to Budapest, then to Helsinki. There he worked hard, composing and studying first with Kodály, then with the Finnish composer Yrjö Kilpinen, and while in Finland, visiting one of his idols, Sibelius, who by that stage had finished all his creative work, and was living in retirement in Järvepää. A number of early works date from this period of study abroad, including the cello sonata and his opera Gammer Gurton’s Needle.

On his return to his native shores, the young composer was confronted by a dilemma — whether to settle in London, with its busy and exciting musical life, and its many opportunities for young musicians, or to return to Scotland, where he felt his roots to be. Cedric opted for the latter course, somewhat against the advice of his friends, and took up an appointment at the Scottish National Academy of Music, teaching theory and composition and taking a full part in the busy life of a music college. In 1945, however, the course of his life changed. He accepted an invitation to move from the bustling west coast city to the small and tranquil town of St Andrews, on the east coast of Fife, as Master of Music in the University. Here for the next thirty years he worked, training choirs and orchestras, giving recitals, as well as teaching and composing, and building up the Department of Music. He also found time to arrange and edit works for performance by the students he directed. Many of his own compositions during these thirty years were for the specific forces at his disposal. The Variations on a Theme of A. C. Mackenzie, for instance, first written for the University Orchestra as then constituted, had additional parts added to it as the composition of the University Orchestra changed, and he spent much time searching out and then arranging works for the sometimes bizarre disposition of the student orchestra. The difficulty of obtaining music in the immediate post-war period was thus a considerable stimulus to creative activity. In addition, he produced a steady stream of compositions, many of them in response to commissions, — for film and theatre, for youth orchestras and Education departments, as well as for work for the young and growing Edinburgh Festival. Indeed, the second Festival, in 1948, marked the beginning of a memorable theatrical partnership. Tyrone Guthrie, Robert Kemp and Cedric Thorpe Davie collaborated in a powerful and spectacular theatrical event which dominated the festival in its opening years — a performance, directed by Tyrone Guthrie, with acting text by Robert Kemp and music by Cedric Thorpe Davie of An Satyre of the Thrie Estaitis, by Sir David Lindsay of the Mount. Cedric continued to work, both with Robert Kemp and Tyrone Guthrie, until their untimely deaths in 1967 and 1971. Much of his output from 1948 onwards reflects his interest in drama. Not only incidental music for stage plays, but also for radio programmes and films — he wrote over 20 film scores — poured from his pen. A high proportion of these have a distinctly Scottish flavour, which is also reflected in his many and beautiful arrangements of traditional Scottish songs. His importance as a composer will only be determined by time, but it is unquestionable that he played a major role in the Scottish musical renaissance of the twentieth century.

* The nomenclature of this institution is confusing, since it has changed its name several times in the course of its history. It started life in 1890, as the Athenaenum School of Music. In 1928, it combined with Glasgow University Faculty of Music to form the Scottish National Academy of Music. In 1944, it was granted a royal charter and so changed its name to the Royal Scottish Academy of Music. Six years later, in 1959, it acquired a drama department and became, as it is now, the Royal Scottish Academy of Music and Drama. It severed its connection with Glasgow University in 1953.

The catalogue is based on the collection in the University Library, St Andrews, but includes scores held in other institutions, notably the Scottish Music Information Centre, and in private hands. Cedric Thorpe Davie numbered his compositions in roughly chronological order and this has been followed. Information about all the music which survives has been brought together under each heading, but peripheral items such as libretti or notes about timings for the film music are not included.

The various appendices contain additional works, unnumbered by the composer, and mostly of modest proportions, which have been found amongst his sketches and elsewhere, works he edited and his other publications. There are also indexes to his works, his settings of Scottish songs, his correspondence, which has been deposited in St Andrews University Library by his sons Antony and Stephen Davie, and an index of names mentioned throughout the catalogue.

1. Trio in C Minor, 1932, for violin, violoncello and piano.

   Autograph pencil ms with the following notes "To Bruno, I give this the Original Manuscript of my first composition. Paddy — June 1932"; "N.B.: the string parts in this copy are not strictly authentic and the bowing is entirely wrong". 'Bruno' is Margaret Russell Brown, afterwards the composer's wife. 20pp.

   Two further copies, with slight differences in their cello parts — score 14pp, parts 3pp each — all in the hand of CTD.

   The work, which was a student composition, was also called Phantasie Trio. It bears the dates 8 January–14 February 1932 and is in one movement: lento; allegro moderato; lento ma non troppo; allegro moderato; lento ma non troppo; lento. See also no. 8.

   Performances:
   - 26 May 1932: First public performance at a Royal Academy of Music chamber concert by the same performers.
   - 29 March 1933: Royal Academy of Music chamber concert, performed by members of the Griller Quartet, with Margaret Chamberlain, piano.

2. Elegy for an Ossianic Warrior, 1932, for full orchestra.

   Full score — 24pp; fair copy of full score in pencil — 22pp, all in the hand of CTD.

   Written while a student at the Royal Academy of Music and dated at Bromley, 15 November 1932, and, in the words of the composer, "retained for reasons of sentiment only".

   The autograph manuscript and one copy, both 4pp; pencil sketches — 5pp.

   A setting of words by Percy Bysshe Shelley, written for the ladies' choir trained by Thorpe Davie, CTD’s father, and sung by them at the City Hall, Glasgow, on 18 March 1933.

4. Concert Overture in D Minor, 1934, for full orchestra.

   Full score, with arrangement for piano duet and pencil sketches, dated at Bromley, February 1934, — 76pp; fair copy of full score in pencil — 56pp, all in the hand of CTD.

   In one movement: lento e maestoso; allegro molto; lento e maestoso. Withdrawn by the composer.

Two copies of score, both dated at Bromley, March-July 1934:
a. with pencil criticisms in the hand of Zoltán Kodály — 40pp; cello part — 9pp
b. with note saying “this copy is not reliable” — 27pp. There is no part.

Masters of score — 21pp, and cello part — 5pp; pencil sketches — 39pp, all in the hand of CTD.

Dedicated to R. H. T., i.e. Robert Harold Thomson, who at this period taught at the Scottish National Academy of Music. He afterwards became the head of music in Scotland at the BBC.

The work is in four movements: Moderato; allegro; lento; con fuoco ma non troppo allegro. Duration: 12 minutes.

The SMIC possesses photocopies of both score and parts.

Performances:
12 January 1935 Scottish National Academy of Music, by Vera Canning, cello, and CTD, piano.
12 February 1935 Royal College of Music chamber concert, by Vera Canning and John Wight Henderson.
26 April 1935 Glasgow Chamber Music Society, also by Vera Canning and John Wight Henderson.
9 December 1935 The first public performance took place in London, at a Lemare concert for new music, where it was performed by Olave Richards and Norman Franklin. The work shared the limelight with Michael Tippett’s String Quartet in A, which was also receiving its first public performance.
5 April 1956 McEwen Memorial Concert, Glasgow, by Basil Deane and Frederick Rimmer.

1. The Bonnie Earl o’ Moray, original key F sharp minor, transposed here to A minor.
2. Sanct Mungo, original key B flat, transposed here to C. The poem is by Alexander Rodger. Parts of this song were later adopted for use in the Ferrierg Reel (no. 38).

Two copies, both in the hand of CTD — both 16pp; pencil sketch of The Bonnie Earl o’ Moray in A minor — 4pp; another copy of Sanct Mungo in C major, with Scots and anglicised versions of the poem — 7pp.

7. The Kingdom of King Winter, 1935, operetta in one act for solo voices and piano.

Score — 51pp; pencil sketches — 30pp, all in the hand of CTD.

The text is by Bertha Waddell and the music was commissioned by her for her children’s theatre. They performed it in Glasgow in March 1936. Bertha Waddell ran her children’s theatre in Glasgow in the inter-war years. It was strictly entertainment for, rather than by the children.

Score, dated Dec. 1934–March 1935, — 32pp; parts — 5pp each; rough copy in pencil, with arrangement for piano duet in ink — 23pp, all in the hand of CTD.

This quartet, which makes use of material from the Trio in C minor (no. 1), won the Cobbe prize at the Royal College of Music, 1935, and is dedicated to ‘B.M.’ who has not been positively identified but is probably Margaret Russell Brown, afterwards the composer’s wife.

The work lasts 7 minutes and is in three movements: adagio maestoso; allegro molto moderato; lento.

Performances:
29 February 1936 Fellowes String Quartet, for the Glasgow Society of Organists.
31 July 1936 Broadcast on Scottish Region by the Scottish Chamber Music Players.
14 December 1937 First London performance by the Blech Quartet, under the auspices of OUP. 1 January 1954 The Lyra Quartet.

Full score, with piano reduction in pencil — 45pp; vocal score, with piano reduction for voice parts occasionally added in red ink — 18pp; arrangement for choir, string orchestra, piano and timpani — 41pp; rough pencil sketches — 22pp, all in the hand of CTD.

The words are from “The death of Cuthillin,” * from the Poems of Ossian, by James Macpherson, and the work is dedicated to M.R.B., i.e. Margaret Russell Brown. The work lasts 15 minutes.

The SMIC possesses the following:

Complete set of parts in the hand of CTD; a photocopy of the full score; 2 piano parts, both in the hand of CTD, for the arrangement for two pianos and timpani which was performed in 1937:

a. score with both piano parts — 17pp
b. score with part for piano 2 — 9pp

Two copies of the timpani part for this arrangement — 2pp each.

The vocal score was published by Bruce, Clements & Co., Edinburgh, in 1937 and taken over by OUP in 1946.

Performances:
15 April 1936 Broadcast from London Region by the BBC Chorus and Orchestra conducted by Leslie Heward.
10 December 1937 Broadcast by the BBC Scottish Singers and Orchestra conducted by Ian Whyte.
26 February 1937 Performed in an arrangement for choir, two pianos and timpani by students of the Scottish National Academy of Music.

1. Holy Archangel Michael
2. The Bachelor
3. As I was walking
4. See, see my own sweet jewel
5. O Jesu parvale
6. Dawn
7. Now would I fain some mirths make
8. Fine English days

Written while CTD was studying in Budapest. There were originally nine songs, the extra one, called ‘O do not kill that bee’ being numbered 2, and existing in fair copies in two versions, in G minor and G flat minor. There are pencil sketches of the others, 1 and 3 existing in both rough and more complete versions — 25pp.

* This is the spelling of the name used by Macpherson, who derived it from the Irish form. CTD preferred the alternative spelling, which was used in the published score.
11. The Land of Laughter, 1936, operetta in one act for solo voices and piano.

Score — 36pp; pencil sketches — 28pp, all in the hand of CTD.
The text is by Bertha Waddell and the music was commissioned by her for her children’s theatre.

Full score, with piano reduction in pencil — 294pp; vocal score — 113pp, both in the hand of CTD; first violin part for scenes 1 and 2 — 15pp; pencil sketches — 94pp.
The composer adapted the libretto from the play by William Stevenson and wrote the work while studying in Helsinki. He later withdrew the opera and rewrote the libretto as the basis for a three act chamber opera, but did not proceed with it. The original play was first performed at Christ’s College, Cambridge, and published in London in 1575 under the title A ryght pithy, pleaesant and merrie comede. In duynted Gammer gartens Nede.
The SMIC possesses vocal scores, in the hand of CTD, marked up for each character and scored at the point in the opera where each character is singing, also photocopies of the full score and the first violin part for scenes 1 and 2.

1. Overture
2. Minuet
3. Hornpipe
4. Sarabande
5. Jig
6. March

Full score, with additional optional wind parts in red ink — 48pp; pencil sketches, entitled Jubilee Suite, and dated September 1935 — 14pp. Duration: 20 minutes.
The Suite was entered for a competition in which a prize of £20 was offered by Walter Willson Cobbe for a Jubilee Suite for school orchestra.
The SMIC possesses photocopies of the full score and a complete set of parts.

Performances:
23 February 1936 Suit in G, consisting of Jig, Sarabande and Hornpipe, was performed for the Glasgow Society of Musicians by the John MacArthur Quintet.
August 1936 The same selection was broadcast by the same forces.
December 1936 Broadcast in full on the national networks by the BBC Scottish Orchestra conducted by Guy Warrack.

Score — 36pp; pencil sketches — 34pp, all in the hand of CTD.
The SMIC has photocopies of the score.
The text is by Bertha Waddell, and the music was commissioned by her for her children’s theatre. It was performed by them in Glasgow and Belfast in 1937, and repeated on 14 December of that year at a Command Performance at Buckingham Palace.

15. Fantasia no. 1 on Four Scottish Tunes, 1937, for small orchestra.

Two copies of the full score, both in the hand of CTD — 38pp and 43pp, masters — 38 pp; pencil sketches — 12pp.
The work, which lasts 14 minutes, is based on the following four tunes: Mairry, O never my son, My love’s in Germany and Miss Mary Grant’s Reel. See also no. 74.
The SMIC possesses a full score from the masters — 38pp, a complete set of masters of the parts and two complete sets of parts in manuscript.

Performances:
12 July 1938 Broadcast by the BBC Scottish Orchestra conducted by Ian Whyte.
10 December 1938 The first public performance took place in Glasgow and the Scottish Orchestra was conducted by George Szell. The Glasgow Herald in its preview wrote: “There was a broadcast performance of the work some time ago, but Mr Cedric Davie has considerably rewritten it since then.”

Since then, it has been frequently performed and broadcast.

Two copies of the vocal score, both in the hand of CTD: — 9pp, dated Jan-Feb, 1936, unrevised, and 8pp, revised.
The revisions consist of the deletion of several bars in the piano part.
The SMIC has photocopies of the revised version.

Words from An compendious Boke of spirtuall and Godlie songs, collecti out of sundrie parts of the Scripture, Edinburgh, 1578.
Dedicated to the contralto Mary Alexander, who was a pupil of CTD’s father, Thorpe Davie, and sister of the soprano Joan Alexander.

Performances:
4 April 1936 Mary Alexander and CTD at Thorpe Davie’s choirs’ concert, Glasgow.
May 1936 Mary Alexander won the vocal solo class at the Glasgow Music Festival, singing this work.
19 November 1936 Mary Alexander and Retta McAllister at an Active Society concert, Glasgow.

17. Theme and Variations, 1937, for wind quintet.

There are six variations.
Score — 7pp; parts — 9pp, wanting the clarinet part and variations 3-6 of the flute part; rough pencil sketches — 12pp.
The SMIC has photocopies of the score and the parts.
18. Three Anthems, 1937, for choir and organ.

1. Now in the Lord my heart doth pleasure take
2. Come Holy Ghost the maker come
3. The Lord is He whose strength doth make me strong

Score, in hand of CTD, with tonic sol-fa added in pencil — 16pp; pencil sketches — 14pp.

These anthems were apparently first performed by the Bach Cantata Choir of the Scottish National Academy of Music on 11 February 1944. The accompaniment on this occasion was scored for flutes, oboes, clarinets, bassoons, horns, trumpets, trombones and strings. There are no orchestral parts extant and the composer himself says that the orchestral versions of the organ part were not completed. The published version has an organ accompaniment.

Words from George Wither's Hymns and Songs of the Church, London, 1623.

Published by OUP, London, 1943. [The Oxford Series of Modern Anthems, nos 97-99.] No. 2 has been recorded by Paisley Abbey Choir, conducted by George McPhee, 1977, [Abbey Records LPB 789.] and no. 3 by the same forces on Alpha ACA532. No. 2 was also recorded as part of the Royal School of Church Music Festival in 1970. [RSCM RR 55.]

19. The Man in the Moon, 1938, operetta in one act for solo voices and piano.

Unfinished pencil sketch — 32pp.

The text is by Bertha Waddell and the music was commissioned by her for her children's theatre; however, this operetta appears not to have been performed.

1. Willy prisbee go to bed
2. The three ravens
3. We be thee poor mariners

Two copies of the score, one with tonic sol-fa in red ink, in the hand of CTD, the other in a copyist's hand, — 14pp; piano accompaniments for practice — 6pp; rough pencil sketches — 7pp.

Words from Thomas Ravenscroft's Deutoromelia, London, 1609, and Melismata, London, 1611. The first song is dedicated to John Rankin and the second one to Robert Howie, friends of the composer.

Published by OUP, London, 1938. [Oxford Choral Songs from the Old Masters, nos 1640-1642.]

Score, with pencil revisions, — 23pp; flute part — 6pp; rough pencil sketches — 27pp, all in the hand of CTD.

There are three movements: allegro; molto lento; rondo.

Revised in 1980 for the flautist, Julie Duncan. The revisions, which correspond with those in pencil on the score of the 1939 version, consist mainly of alterations to the piano part of the first movement, but there are also changes to the flute part of the first movement and the piano part of movements two and three.

Score, 27pp, and part, 10pp, of the revised version, in private hands.

The SMIC has photocopies of the score and flute part of the unrevised version.

Two copies of the score, both in the hand of CTD — 49pp; two copies of the violin part:

a. in the hand of a copyist — 12pp
b. in the hand of James Macdonald Young Simpson, dated June 1953, which was prepared for a performance by members of the St Andrews University Musical Society — 19pp.

Another copy of the violin part in the hand of CTD — 15pp; pencil sketches — 37pp.

The work lasts 22 minutes and is in four movements: Non troppo allegro ma con fuoco; lento; allegro anaisi; lento-allegro con fuoco-lento e tranquillo.

The SMIC possesses photocopies of the score — 49pp.

Performances:

28 November 1939 The first performance was given by Horace Fellowes and John Wight Henderson under the auspices of the Dunedin Association for the Promotion and Development of Scottish Music, Glasgow.

Since then it has been frequently performed.

23. Scotland Speaks [Scotland's War Effort], 1940.

Full score, in ink and pencil — 68pp; sketches — 36pp, all in the hand of CTD.

Music for a documentary film.

24. To Mistress Margaret Hussey, 1943, for female chorus (S.S.A.), flute, harp and string quartet.

Two copies of the full score — 7pp and 6pp; vocal score in pencil, all in the hand of CTD.

The words are by John Skelton (1460-1529), and the work is dedicated to the Husseys who were friends of CTD.

It was written for a Scottish National Academy of Music occasion.

Full score — 22pp; pencil sketches — 30pp, all in the hand of CTD.

The work is in three movements: Tempo di marcia; adagio; allegro commodo. It was later withdrawn by the composer.

The score, which is dated October 1943 – January 14, 1944, bears the dedication "To Wight Henderson, Pyrothechnican and fellow-conspirator". John Wight Henderson was a close and lifelong friend of CTD; both were Court scholars, studying composition and piano in London. Wight Henderson went to Vienna to continue his piano studies with Emil von Sauer, who had been a pupil of Liszt, returning to the Scottish National Academy of Music, Glasgow, where he became professor of piano. The two friends produced a number of light-hearted compositions, each writing a bar in turn; hence the "fellow-conspirator".

The SMIC possesses a complete set of orchestral parts and an arrangement for two pianos — 40pp.

Performances:

9 March 1944 First performed by John Wight Henderson and the Glasgow String Orchestra, conducted by John MacArthur.

22 March 1945 Another performance by the same forces.

28 April 1945 John Wight Henderson and the orchestra of the Newcastle-upon- Tyne Bach Society conducted by Chalmers Burns.
26. Six Scottish Folk Songs, 1943, for voice and piano.

1. The land o’ cakes
2. The kail brose of auld Scotland
3. O gie my love brose
4. Lass, gin ye k’ me
5. Come, taste the cup
6. A cogie o’ ale and a pickle atmeal

These songs, like the next item, are included and numbered by CTD in his own list of his compositions, but no trace of music for them has been found.

27. Ten Scottish Dance Tunes, 1943, for violin, violoncello, double bass and piano.

Lost (see previous item).

28. Three Scottish Folk Songs, 1943, for baritone solo and male voice choir (T.T.B.B.)

1. Red, red is the path to glory
2. The hundred pipers
3. There was a lad was born in Kyle

Score, in the hand of CTD — 10pp.

29. Scotland at War, 1943, for full orchestra.

Full score — 69pp; rough pencil sketches — 21pp, all in the hand of CTD. It included Red, red is the path to glory (see 28).

Music for a St Andrews Day radio feature, written and produced by Robert Kemp. The programme, subtitled A panorama for St Andrews Day, was broadcast on 30 November 1943. The music was played by the BBC Scottish Orchestra, conducted by Knox Steiden.

30. Six Polish Folk Songs, 1943, for voice, clarinet, violin and violoncello.

1. Przepiętczeka — The concrake (moderato)
2. Ty pójdżiesz gőra — You’ll take the high road (lento)
3. Bün cyk cyk... — Forgetfu’ Johnny (allegretto)
4. Umart maciek umart — Colin’s lyn’ deid (poco lento)
5. O! ty Winot — The herd’s song to his whistle (lento con molto espressione)
6. W mußwanej piwnicy — Hielan’ robbers’ rea (allegro molto rímico)

Full score — 14pp; vocal score — 10pp; sketches, consisting of a fair copy of the full score in pencil — 12pp.

Translated into Scots verse by Helena Mennie Shire and “a Polish soldier in Scotland”. Helena Mennie Shire lectured in English at Cambridge University. A native of Aberdeen, she had a particular interest in the Scots language.

The SMIC possesses a set of instrumental parts of 1, 2, 4 and 5. 1 is transposed down to Eb, the rest to E minor. The original keys are G major (1 and 3), G minor (2, 4 and 5) and Eb (6).

These songs were used in Poloniaise, by Robert Kemp, which was produced by Matthew Forsyth at the Glasgow Citizens’ Theatre in 1947. They were also broadcast in the series Scottish Chapbook. Writing from Cambridge in an undated letter, Helena Mennie Shire and her Polish collaborator Mieczyslaw Pruss said, “We should like to thank you most deeply for the satisfaction and the delight we had in the lovely settings you made for our Polish songs in Scots last month in Scottish Chapbook. We had an eager and critical Scottish-Polish audience gathered here, and we all fought up our hats when the songs were done. The Polish hats because your ensemble had come so near the very sound and had touched the very spirit of their ‘village bands’, and we Scots, I think, because your settings gave such conviction to the new-thing the Scots-Polish dream-thing we had made”.

31. The Switchback, 1944.

Pencil sketches, with a few notes about the orchestration — 23pp.

Music for a play by James Bridie.

32. The Anatomist, 1944.

No music extant.

Music for a play by James Bridie.

33. A Change for the Worse, 1944.

Music for a morality play by James Bridie. The play was apparently broadcast on 4 February 1945, in a production by Moultrie Kelsall, but the music has been lost.

34. A House is Built, 1944.

Full score — 24pp; pencil sketches — 14pp, all in the hand of CTD.

Music for a radio play by George Scott-Moncrieff.

35. Sun and Moon, 1944.

This music was written for a radio play by Neil Gunn, but it has not survived (see no. 130).

Pencil sketches — 19pp.

Music for a radio feature by Robert Kemp. This portrait of a Highland gamekeeper was first broadcast in March 1945 and repeated in December 1951 and June 1955, when the music was played by the BBC Scottish Variety Orchestra conducted by Kelnio Steiden. On 6 April 1945, Robert Kemp wrote to CTD, “I should like to tell you in confidence that we have heard by a roundabout, but absolutely reliable channel, that the King listened to The Ghillie and was delighted by it, saying it took him for half an hour to the hills above Balmoral”.

37. A Sleeping Clergyman, 1945.

Music written for the play by James Bridie. No music extant.

The play was broadcast in March 1956 in a production by James Crampey. The cast included Rona Anderson and Murielle Kelsall, and the music was played by a section of the BBC Scottish Orchestra, conducted by Gerald Gentry.

38. The Forrigan Reel, 1945, for voices, chanter, pipes, spinet and string orchestra.

1. Balow ma babe, words by George Scott-Moncrieff
2. O Earth be hushed, words by Robert Kemp

Score — 5pp.

Originally written for solo and orchestra, the carols were published in this version for S. A. T. B. by Bayley & Ferguson, Glasgow & London, [1964.] (Choral Album no. 1575.) They were written for Robert Kemp’s nativity play When the star fell, which made use of some material from George Scott-Moncrieff’s radio nativity play Born this happy morning (see no. 41). The full list of carols for When the star fell is:
1. Midwinter now it is
2. O Earth be hushed
3. Song of the angel (Glory toe God and peace tae men)
4. Balow ma babe
5. The Balm has no to Egypt gane
6. But God will ding (verse 2 of no. 5)

The words to 1 and 2 are by Robert Kemp, the rest by George Scott-Moncrieff.

In addition to the score of the two carols which were published, there is a score of the following carols in the hand of CTD — 11pp:
Midwinter now it is (S.A.T.B.)
O Earth be hushed (S.A.T.B.)
Song of the angel (soprano or tenor and piano)
Balow ma babe (S.A. and piano)

Score of the arrangements of the following carols for S.A.T.B. by Dr Eric Smith, director of music at George Heriot’s School, Edinburgh — 12pp:
Song of the angel
Balow ma babe
But God will ding

Scott-Moncrieff wrote to CTD on 13 August 1953: “I am very sorry but the BBC having been most unco-operative and not providing your setting of my carol, my producer has had another setting made. I did send them the part-song settings you sent, but apparently — since the girl who is to sing is not very expert — they found it too difficult to work from. I am sorry as I much like your setting.” When the star fell was produced at the Gateway Theatre, Edinburgh from 20–25 December 1946. The music was sung by the Edinburgh University Singers conducted by Ian Pat-Watson, using Dr Smith’s arrangements. The play was broadcast during the course of the run.

Three songs written for a radio play by Alexander Scott.

Score in the hand of CTD — 7pp; another copy of song 3 — 2pp; rough pencil sketches — 3pp.

90. Mr Gillie, 1950.

The music was originally written for the radio adaptation of the play by James Bridie. However, there exists only one page of rough sketches for the stage version, which was produced at the Garrick Theatre by Alastair Sim and opened on 9 March 1950. There is no music extant specifically for the radio version. The composer, in his own list of his works, says that the music was scored for clarinet, bassoon, two trumpets, two trombones, percussion, string quartet and double bass. However, writing in the St Andrews University newspaper College Echoes in the autumn of 1950, J.B.L. (an unidentified reviewer, presumably a student,) says "One of the outstanding features in practically all his music is the curiously effective combination of instruments used: for the production of James Bridie's 'Mr Gillie' in London last year, the incidental music was scored for clarinet and bassoon..."

91. The Craftsman's Hand, 1951, for baritone, clarinet, violin, viola and violoncello.

Score of incidental music — 7pp; songs — 6pp, all in the hand of CTD:
1. I haena a wife
2. O lasie will ye sport wi' me
3. The skirl o' the pipes

The score of the songs is a reconstruction, made in 1979 from the original score which was cut up to make parts. Rough pencil sketches — 10pp.

Music for a radio feature by George Scott-Moncrieff, which was broadcast on 2 August 1951 and produced by Robert Kemp.

92. Flowers from the Rock, 1951.

Fanfare, in the original manuscript, and seven partsongs in a photocopy — 13pp; pencil sketches — 11pp. The script also calls for a tenor solo.
1. Worldless chorus
2. Agnus Dei, for St Margaret, Queen of Scotland
3. Elegy for Margaret, Maid of Norway, words taken from the Old English poem The Pearl
4. Song for Marguerite d'Ecosse, words by the 15th century French poet Guascon Renauld. This is the tenor solo, missing in the St Andrews copy, but present in the SMIC
5. Welcome song for Margaret Tudor, Now fairest of every fair, words anon, 16th century
6. Lullaby for Margaret, daughter of James VI, words by Tom Fleming
7. The diamond of delight, words anon., but probably by James IV
8. All pleasant be her path, words by Tom Fleming

The SMIC possesses score and parts for the fanfare, and the score of all the songs, in the hand of CTD.

Music for a radio programme by Tom Fleming to celebrate the 21st birthday of Princess Margaret, which was broadcast on 21 August 1951 and produced by Robert Kemp. The songs were sung by the choir of St Mary's Episcopal Cathedral, Edinburgh.

93. Fanfares for the Closing Ceremony of the Edinburgh Festival, 1951.

A ballad opera by Joseph Mitchell, published in London in 1771. The title page reads The Highland Fair, or the Union of the clans. An opera. As it is performed at the Theatre-Royal, in Drury Lane, by His Majesty's servants. Written by Mr Mitchell. With the masque, which wholly consists of select Scots tunes, prefixed to each song. It was first performed in Robert Kemp's adaptation at the Edinburgh Festival in 1952 by the Citizens' Theatre, Glasgow and revised for performance in 1953, produced on both occasions by Tyrone Guthrie. The original was an imitation of the hugely successful Beggar's Opera, which preceded it by only three years. There are thirty-six songs, most of which are based upon Scottish folk tunes named in the original edition, but some of the airs have been taken from other sources.

The SMIC possesses a copy of the vocal score in the 1953 version, taken from the masters; nos 28, 29, 33 and 35 in a version transposed down a tone; 3 songs which were cancelled or moved:

a. Since every sweet and every grace (37), cancelled in 1952, reinstated 1953 and renumbered (30A) — 2pp.

125. The Dark Avenger, 1954.

Pencil sketches — 82pp.

Music for the feature film by 20th Century Fox. The film, which was about the Black Prince, starred Peter Finch and Errol Flynn in his last swash-buckling role.
126. Marigold, 1954, for clarinet, violin and piano.

Full score, in the hand of CTD, consisting of the final 20 numbers, with first version numbering crossed out and renumbered — 42pp; full score of nine numbers, numbered according to the first version, of which three only appear to have been used — 17pp; violin and clarinet parts for all 27 numbers.

The original version of Marigold, by Mrs Lizzie Allen Harker and Francis Robert Pryor, ran for 18 months at the Kingsway Theatre, London, 1927, and was rewritten by Robert Kemp for a production at the Gateway Theatre, Edinburgh, in December 1954. The music for the Gateway production originally consisted of 27 numbers but the author and composer seem to have revised the show so that only 20 were finally used. A version for full orchestra was prepared for a radio broadcast with the Scottish Variety Orchestra. This was broadcast on 24 August 1955. It consists of 21 numbers, that is, those used in the final stage version, plus Villikens and his Dinah, which was dropped from the Gateway production.

Full score, in pencil, in the hand of CTD, of the version scored for orchestra — 119pp; rough pencil sketches — 50pp.

126A. Villikens and his Dinah, 1955, for voice and orchestra.

See no. 126. From the radio version of Marigold; no music exists separately from Marigold.

   Pencil sketches — 10pp. Settings of 3 songs and a fanfare for a pageant celebrating the institution of the burgh and its charter. The pageant was written by Robert Kemp, produced by Harry Douglas and performed in May 1965.

   Pencil sketches — 4pp. An arrangement for a recording made by the actor Bill Simpson, released in March 1964. The actor spoke the poem against background music provided by voices, violins, guitar, bass guitar and organ.

   Pencil sketches — 4pp.

15. BBC Burns Programme, 1968.

   Sketches for the following songs — 11pp:

   1. Does haughty Gaul invasion threat?
   2. A parcel of rogues in the nation
   3. Sensibility how charming
   4. O wha my babby-clouts will buy?
   5. Careles o’ Dysart
   6. O Willie brew’d a peck o’ maun

16. As Through the Street, for male voice choir.

Poem by R.F. Murray, music by John Farmer, arranged for male voice choir by CTD. The theme was used in Variations on a theme of A.C.Mackenzie (no. 73). Not in STAUL. The SMIC has the masters — 1p. The St Andrews University Music Department has multiple copies taken from them.

17. Iain Ghlinn’ Cuaich (John of Glen Quaich).

Pencil sketches, with tonic sol-fa version of the melody — 6pp. Arrangement for S.S.A., presumably done for the Mod.

18. My Tocher’s the Jewel, for soprano and string orchestra.

Not in STAUL. The SMIC has a score with the voice part in pencil, — 2pp, and a complete set of string parts.

19. Ten Scottish Folk Song arrangements for voice and piano.

1. Tweedside
2. The mill, mill o’
3. Fy gar rah her owre w’i strae
4. The colleit’s bonnie lassie
5. Gie me a lass w’i a lump o’ land
6. She raise and loot me in
7. Jenny Nettles
8. The lass of Ecclefechan
9. The cooper o’ Cuddy
10. O Charlie is my darling

20. There’ll Never be Peace till Jamie comes Hame.

This is a setting for baritone and piano of By you castle wall, which was recorded by Ronald Morrison and Julian Dawson, together with I’ll aye ca’ in by you loan and The devil’s awa with th’ exciseman, on Saltire RD6789, in the 1970s. No music or sketches exist for these settings.

STAUL has five original stencils, representing ten pages of music.

Published by Bayley & Ferguson, Glasgow; London, [1964.] [Bayley & Ferguson’s new ‘Clyde’ series of choral music no. 5.]

WORKS EDITED BY CEDRIC THORPE DAVIE

Most of Cedric Thorpe Dave’s editing work was done for St Andrews University Musical Society and reflects the nature of the forces at his disposal.

1. Thésée, 1950.

Five excerpts from the opera by Lully, (1675):
1. Overture; les jeux et les amours
2. Millez les chants de victoire les douces chansons d’amour
3. Que l’onde doit être content...
4. Que nos prairies seront fleuries!
5. Le ciel veut éclairer tout ce qui peut nuire

Edited by CTD from the full score in the Reid Music Library, Edinburgh.
Orchestral parts in St Andrews University Music Department.

Performances:
17 April 1950 and 19 April 1960 St Andrews University Musical Society.

2. Abdelazer, 1955.

Overture and rondeau from Parceil’s music for the play by Aphra Behn, 1695, edited for string orchestra, with optional flutes, oboes and clarinets. Orchestral and continuo parts in St Andrews University Music Department.

Performances:
April 1955 St Andrews University Musical Society.

3. Thomas and Sally, 1956.

The opera by Thomas Arne, 1760, which was edited and revised by CTD. Music in private hands.

Performances:
February 1956 St Andrews University Musical Society.
1965 Blairgowrie Lyric Choir, conducted by William Henney, who had been in the original cast in 1956.

4. The Choice of Hercules, 1957.

A cantata by John Stanley, dated by Gerald Finzi between 1761 and 1774. Correspondence now in St Andrews University Library shows that CTD and Finzi discussed editorial problems relating to this work and to Boyce’s Ode to Charity.

Vocal score, taken from the masters, now in the Finzi Collection, STAUL.

Performances:
19 February 1957 and 7 February 1961 St Andrews University Musical Society.
5. Ode to Charity, 1957.

By William Boyce, written in 1774, and edited by CTD from manuscripts in St Michael’s College, Tonbury and the Library of Congress.

Vocal score — 48pp, taken from the masters, now in the Finzi Collection, STAUL. 111 copies of the chorus parts, photostats, 8pp, held in St Andrews University Music Department. CTD, writing to Howard Ferguson on 27 October 1956, said: "... for the last fortnight I have been practically literally at my desk day and night trying to finish editing Boyce’s Ode to Charity and Stanley’s Choice of Hercules, both of which I am doing up here this year..."

Performances:
30 April 1957  St Andrews University Musical Society.

Ten short movements from Lustgarten neuer teutscher Gesang, by Hans Leo Hassler (1601). CTD has reworked them from an early printed source (Hortus Musicus no. 73) and scored them for large orchestra..."the entire composition has been carefully scored to accommodate the personnel of the University Orchestra"... (programme note).

Parts in St Andrews University Music Department, for three flutes, oboe, three clarinets, bassoon, two horns, trombone, timpani and eight string parts.

Performances:
30 April 1957  St Andrews University Musical Society.

Taken from Schubert’s 16 Ländler (Wiener Damen Ländler) D.734, c.1822, and arranged by CTD for piccolo, four flutes, four oboes, six clarinets, bassoon, two horns, celio, double bass and triangle.

Full score — 28pp.

Performances:
18 February 1958  St Andrews University Musical Society.

Mozart’s Variations on “Ahi! vous dirai-je maman?” for piano, K. 265, 1781-82, arranged by CTD for flute, oboe, three clarinets, bassoon, horn, two trumpets, tuba, timpani, three percussion players, harp, string quartet and double bass. Variations 4 and 7 of the original are omitted.

Full score — 34pp; orchestral parts held in St Andrews University Music Department.

Performances:
24 February 1961  St Andrews University Musical Society.

Full score — 75pp.

10. Variations on God Save the King for Piano, 1963.

Beethoven’s set of variations, written in 1802-03, arranged by CTD to suit St Andrews University Musical Society orchestra. He scored it for two flutes, eight clarinets, three bassoons, two horns and percussion.

Full score — 26pp.

Performances:
28 January 1964  St Andrews University Musical Society.

Song by Schubert, D757 (1822), with words by Johann W. L. Gleim, orchestrated by CTD.

Complete set of masters of the orchestral parts in the SMIC. This, and the following item, were performed at a St Andrews University Musical Society promenade concert on 13 February 1968. They were sung by female voices.

Song by Schubert, D920 (1827), with words by Franz Grillparzer, orchestrated by CTD.

Complete set of masters of the orchestral parts in the SMIC.

INDEX TO SETTINGS OF SCOTTISH SONGS

Settings of Scottish songs formed a significant part of Cedric Thorpe Davie's output. Some songs were set several times for different combinations of voices or instruments, for a particular singer, or a particular occasion such as a radio programme celebrating Burns. Where a song has been set on a number of occasions, each setting is listed, even though it may not differ very much from other versions. Songs used in large scale theatrical works such as The Highland Fair are not included. The reference is either to the number in the main catalogue or to the supplementary one of unnumbered works. In the latter case, the number is preceded by a 'U'. For the purposes of alphabetisation, both English and Gaelic articles have been ignored.

OTHER PUBLICATIONS

CORRESPONDENCE

This index to CTD's correspondence follows the composer's own arrangement. The majority of the letters are filed under the name of the writer, but those relating to specific shows, particularly if they are of a technical nature, are to be found under the name of the show in question. The brief descriptions of the letters are intended to do no more than give a general indication of the subjects covered. It will be seen that the most interesting and significant letters are those from the composers Gerald Finzi and Howard Ferguson, who were CTD's lifelong friends, corresponding with him regularly on matters musical.

Wenys manuscripts correspondence.
The two manuscripts were discovered by Professor Adam, professor of medieval history at St Andrews University, during his research into Sutherland family documents at Dunrobin Castle. One of the manuscripts seems to have belonged to Margaret Wenys (1630-1648), whose sister later became Countess of Sutherland. It contains late songs, including a song by Thomas Morley, 'White as lilies', which had hitherto been thought to be lost, late music, mainly dances, and poems. The second manuscript, which probably belonged to Margaret Wenys' sister, contains only late music. CTD was working on the manuscripts at the time of his death.

Abram, Richard 1 letter 16 January 1981. Acknowledges receipt of transcription of Morley song and suggests a minor emendation to the article.

Duncan, Thomas Gibson 1 letter from CTD to Duncan, 28 November 1979, asking for help in identifying the poems in the Wenys ms.
1 letter from Graham Bradshaw to Duncan, 11 December 1979, identifying some of the poems.
1 memorandum to Duncan from Christopher John Morris MacEaichan on the same subject 16 January 1980. With a list of the incipits of the poems.
Elliot, Kenneth J 1 letter, 12 November 1979, agreeing to identify the titles of the music.
1 letter from CTD to Elliot asking for help 2 November 1979.

2 letters from CTD to Ferguson, 24 November 1979 — 9 January 1980, about the hitherto unknown Morley song — CTD seeks advice on publication.
2 letters from Peter Le Huray to Ferguson, November — 5 December 1979, regretting that he cannot solve the problem.

Two articles from Lute Society Journal:

Greer, David 4 letters, 25 November 1979 — 22 August 1981, about the Morley song; enquires about the progress of CTD's work on the Wemys mss and acknowledges receipt of xerox of article.
1 letter from CTD to Greer, 28 November 1979, discussing the Wemys mss and the Morley song in particular. Xerox of the article and a list of lute songs to be included in Greer's edition for Musica Britannica.
